La toxicología alimentaria es una disciplina que reclama, cada vez más, la atención de investigadores y autoridades académicas, legislativas y gubernativas. El hombre ha debido aprender por experiencia propia, a veces dolorosa, a distinguir entre alimentos saludables y nocivos y, a lo largo de los siglos, a producir, conservar y preparar sus alimentos de la forma más beneficiosa. Pero el crecimiento de la población, la industrialización, la comercialización a gran escala, el mercantilismo, la no observancia de las legislaciones, etc., ha permitido la aparición de brotes e incluso de epidemias tóxicas de origen alimentario con cientos y hasta miles de intoxicados agudos, además de los incontables de carácter crónico, que son los que los alimentos pueden producir en mayor cantidad y de forma más solapada. INDICE: Introducción y conceptos. Principales mecanismos de absorción de tóxicos presentes en los alimentos. Importancia de la microbiótica del tracto gastrointestinal en toxicología. Biodisponibilidad de sustancias tóxicas en los alimentos. Evolución de la toxicidad de aditivos y contaminantes presentes en alimentos.
