THE MAN WITH THE CLOTH SACK: 1942 An Historical Novel FRANCESCO GRECO

1942 and Turin is at war. At night, a young doctor is riding his old bicycle along the dark streets of the city center. He's carrying a sack on his back filled with provisions for people in need. Called up by the Army, he has been entrusted with a special mission in Turkey to track down a native Italian and friend, and recover some extremely important documents, both from an industrial and strategic point of view, that foreign agents have subtracted from Fiat Aviation. His journey, incidents, places, people become images in an album to browse over, whose pages recount stories of friendship, love, war, death, passion, adventure. The events narrated somehow seem to have similarities with present day reality. While the dialogues, throughout the specific situations in which the characters act, are in line with the current social needs. As a whole, a simple jute sack becomes the symbol of hope for a better future. Both then and now.
