"When Ramsay Wood retells a story he makes a proper job of it." - The Times

From around the world - Korea to Ireland, Burma to France - come these nine hardy cat tales, stories that have survived for generations because of their enduring popularity.

Vicious, affectionate, murderous or benign - however you view cats you will find them portrayed here in full contradictory splendour.

Aided by eight top illustrators, Ramsay Wood retells a lively, personal selection. His previous book was the highly acclaimed "Kalila and Dimna - Selected Fables of Bidpai", which was adapted for the stage as "A Word in the Stargazer's Eye" at the 1984 Edinburgh Festival. He was the Secretary of the London-based College of Storytellers until 1991.

"A cat may look at a King, and a swain's eye hath as high a reach as a lord's looks." - Robert Greene, 1590
