P-51 Mustang is a detailed new history of the design, development, and combat record of the P-51 and the pilots who flew it to fame. Noted aviation historian Robert Dorr has interviewed pilots first-hand to get their perspectives on all the sweat, fear, and glory of air-to-air combat. Illustrating the story are more than 150 color and black-and-white photographs showing the many Mustang variants, along with colorful nose art, markings, and the paint schemes they carried. This complete history also contains the author's complete account of a modern-day ride in a restored P-51.
